The College of New Rochelle was founded in 1904 by the Ursuline Order as the first Catholic college for women in New York State. Today, the College serves a student population of nearly 4,200 students. In addition to the School of Arts and Sciences, which remains all-women, the College has three co-educational schools: the Graduate School, established in 1969; the School of New Resources, in 1972; and the School of Nursing, in 1976. The College’s main campus is in New Rochelle, with six branch campuses of the School of New Resources located throughout the New York metropolitan area.

Contributions from Trustees, graduates and friends have always supported CNR’s mission.

The importance of the life of the spirit and a reverence for the individual are hallmarks of an Ursuline value-based education. These characteristics are manifest in a College of New Rochelle education today. The College’s primary purpose is the intellectual development of persons through the maintenance of the highest standards of academic excellence and educational growth.

Gifts to the College include cash, appreciated securities, capital donations, real estate, charitable gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, endowed funds, and bequests.

When The College of New Rochelle is included in estate plans through a planned gift or a bequest, thoughtful donors reduce their taxes, protect their assets, and in some cases generate income. By reaching beyond their own lives to assure opportunities for future generations, CNR’s donors shape the future and make a critical difference in the College’s ability to fulfill its mission.

For additional information about making a gift to The College of New Rochelle, please call the Office of College Advancement at (914) 654-5917.

Charitable donations allow the College to build upon its commitment and mission as an educational institution by providing academic scholarships, grants, financial aid, and technology enhancements. Similarly, revenue from contributions is used for physical plant renovations, special programs, and curriculum development.

The College’s primary purpose is the intellectual development of persons through the maintenance of the highest standards of academic excellence and educational growth.

This is a wonderful opportunity to double the value of your gift and reinforce CNR’s mission, vision and initiatives. We hope you will say “Yes!” to the Million Dollar Challenge by returning your gift/additional gift in the enclosed reply envelope, or donating online at www.myncr.com/makeagift.

This year, we received a “Million Dollar Challenge” match from a generous CNR graduate and benefactor (who wishes to remain anonymous).

All new and increased gifts received through July 12, 2013 will be matched up to one million dollars as a result of this Challenge, which was created to strengthen all aspects of the CNR experience, as well as to express confidence in the future of the College under the leadership of President Judith Huntington.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

It gives me great pleasure to share with you this Annual Report, which demonstrates our commitment to prudent financial management by achieving another year of positive operating results for The College of New Rochelle. We have much to be proud of at the College as we continue to accelerate steadily despite complex and challenging economic times. As president, I believe strongly that we are at an important moment in our history. This is not a time to stand still. To ensure a vibrant and successful future for CNR, this is a time when we must transform the College through strategic, innovative, and sustainable growth while embracing the core values that have guided us faithfully for nearly 110 years. Higher education as a sector will not be as patient over the next decade as it has been over the last two decades. Thus, this is the moment to take bold steps and create a blueprint for our future.

A few months after I began my presidency, I presented to the Board of Trustees my top ten strategic imperatives for the College. These imperatives were reported on in the last issue of Quarterly. I am profoundly grateful that a committed alumna provided a one million dollar gift to launch our strategic agenda which was then further supported by an additional one million dollar matching gift challenge. The timeliness of this and all of your support is critical as we continue to invest in technology, academic programs, and our facilities. This significant donation allows us to further strengthen CNR, and we hope will inspire others to be generous as well.

Among my top imperatives is the implementation of a collaborative, institution-wide Strategic Planning Process, a process which is well underway. Now, more than ever, it is necessary for us to assess the risks and challenges that are before us and develop a unique strategic direction that is both congruent with our mission yet sets us apart for our competition. Through the strategic planning process, opportunities for strategic investments in academic programs, technology, facilities, and student outcomes will be identified.

During the past year, a committee representing the College’s constituencies but predominantly faculty of all four Schools and the Library has been hard at work to determine how to honor the unique and special mission of CNR in a meaningful and contemporary way. They have engaged over 1,000 internal and external stakeholders, including faculty, staff, students, alumnai/i, donors, and corporate, government, and school district representatives, to examine our past and to provide us with a fresh perspective on the outlook for higher education and The College of New Rochelle’s place within it. From this process, we will draft a set of strategic goals as planning priorities that will shape the future of the College and create a vibrant and compelling vision that will allow us to thrive and our students to be successful. To be successful, this project will take courage, discipline and a community working together: the very gifts that we have been blessed with for more than 100 years. I look forward to sharing the results of this process with you in future issues of Quarterly.

As I stated above, standing still is not an option. While the strategic planning process has been ongoing, we have continued to advance the College, accomplishing much as we embrace transformation while holding true to the fundamental values that have brought us to this point in our history—an institution founded by the Ursulines that is committed to strong academic programs grounded in the liberal arts and carried out in the Catholic intellectual tradition with a special commitment to access and diversity and to women’s education. Some of those accomplishments are reported in the pages that follow.

In all that we do here at CNR, our students are central. They are the ultimate beneficiaries in our mission of service. Throughout this year, I have met regularly with students from each of our Schools and each of our campuses. After each meeting, I come away so impressed with their strong academic quality, staunch commitment to education, and all that they put forth to earn their degrees. Many are first in their families to ever go to college and are working while trying to obtain their education, and yet they persevere because they know that education will transform their lives and those of their families. They make me so incredibly proud. That is real success. That is what motivates and energizes me to build and further the good work of this sacred institution. I invite you to meet a few of those students in this Annual Report.

I hope that this brief review of the many initiatives at the College inspires you as much as it does me. Each of you truly shares in these accomplishments for it is with your generous support of the College and your belief in our mission that we are able to move forward. We are so grateful.

Sincerely,

Judith Huntington
President
As we look back on another productive year in the history of The College of New Rochelle, we celebrate a number of initiatives and offer a brief snapshot from across all areas of the College.

RAISING VISIBILITY

College Relations has focused on developing more opportunities to host events and enter into partnerships that bring new audiences to campus to witness all that The College of New Rochelle has to offer and raise our visibility. This year we had three major events. “Powerful Women,” a panel discussion sponsored by the Westchester Business Journal, brought hundreds of women leaders to campus. New York State Governor Cuomo held a press conference announcing legislation to protect people with disabilities, an initiative very much in keeping with our mission, and we also were host to a private meeting and public forum sponsored by the Hudson Valley Economic Development Conference. In addition, the College hosted several groups on campus this summer, including the Center for Montessori Teacher Education, the NYU Child Study Center, and the STS Foundation’s international exchange program for high school students from Sweden.

Plans are also underway for CNR to host workshops and seminars for faculty/staff at Ursuline schools and colleges in the summer of 2013. This educational and formational experience would include a review of the Renaissance context in which St. Angela lived and developed her ideas and spirituality, the history of the Ursulines, an overview of Ursuline educational philosophy and pedagogy, and introduction and engagement with the variety of more recent Ursuline educational initiatives.

KEEPING TRUE TO OUR MISSION

In all that The College of New Rochelle does, staying true to the mission that gives the College purpose and that has sustained us for more than a century is paramount. At the invitation for review issued by the United States Conference on Catholic Bishops, and on the occasion of our 10th anniversary of our application of Ex Corde Ecclesiae to the United States, we undertook a process of self-assessment focused on institutional mission with special attention to our Catholic identity. This process affirmed our ongoing dedication to its Catholic identity and the integration of Catholic teaching throughout all aspects of the College’s life. The report that was produced offers a snapshot of this ongoing dedication.
Area President. PepsiCo, where trustee Hugh Johnston is Chief Financial Officer, granted CNR $54,000 to fund a series of workshops and other activities at CNR’s Wellness Center to encourage healthier living. The College also has had a long and successful partnership with Con Edison. Saddie Smith, Vice President of Enterprise Shared Services at Con Edison, and Joan Freilich, who was Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer at Con Edison before her recent retirement, currently serve on the College’s Board. CNR’s last request for funding in 2011 resulted in a $15,000 grant for the Sonia Kovalevsky Math Day, which encourages area high school women to consider enrolling in college math, and to support student involvement in sustainability activities. Safra National Bank, where new trustee Peter Javier is Executive Vice President and Chief Compliance Officer, provided a $50,000 grant for the planning of the School of New Resources’ pilot GED program.

ENHANCING STUDENT LIFE

A comprehensive review of the College’s dining services program was conducted in an effort to provide the College Community with a vibrant dining environment exemplified by the highest standards of quality and service. A successful dining experience is integral to the College’s institutional mission and a vital component of student recruitment, engagement, and retention. Over the summer, Culin Art was selected as the College’s new food service vendor, and they have received very positive reviews from students thus far. In late September, food service on the main campus was further enhanced with the addition of a Starbucks Café in Gill Library.

Over the last year, athletic recruiting initiatives have been developed that identified the College’s strengths, addressed challenges, and set ambitious goals for athletic recruitment. This fall, 18 student-athletes were enrolled, surpassing the goal. These students hail from a variety of states and nearly three-quarters are resident students, which will further enhance student life on campus.

The Ursuline Leadership Program has been introduced. This program, which will be student-led, is designed to strengthen all students’ awareness of the College’s Catholic and Ursuline tradition. Ursuline leaders will work together to engage their peers in four key areas: service to others, retreat experiences, social justice advocacy, and liturgical ministries. Students graduating from Ursuline high schools who are interested in participating in the work of Campus Ministry were eligible to apply. This year, two recipients were selected, hailing from The Ursuline School in New Rochelle and The Academy of Mount Saint Ursula in the Bronx. Each student received a room grant of approximately $8,000.

To increase student engagement in student life, special grants were offered to incoming and continuing students with an interest in lending their talents to support either of two campus organizations—Tatler student newspaper or the Holy Family Chapel Choir. The response to the initiative was exceptional. A large number of students auditioned for vocal or instrumental choir grants, resulting in a very full complement of singers and musicians who will lead the congregation in song at the Sunday liturgy and other College masses. Likewise, Tatler will benefit from the infusion of journalistic talent in the freshman class.
FUNDRAISING SUCCESS
This year marks the 35th year of positive operating results for The College of New Rochelle. It was also the second best fundraising year in the College’s history, raising more than $7 million to support the operating budget.

The College also received several major gifts. Former faculty member Caryl Horwitz graciously donated a complete museum set of 75 Ansel Adams photographs to the College in honor of Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly, OSU. This collection, which is in excellent condition and believed to be one of only ten ever produced, is valued at $2.5 million. In addition we received two million-dollar gifts. The first, a gift from an alumna, will match all new and increased gifts up to a million dollars, and the second is a bequest from Dorothy Hyde Class of 1937. We were also able reallocate a significant amount of funds back into operations with the sale of the president’s house in Pelham for $1.2 million.

INCREASING FINANCIAL SUPPORT FOR STUDENTS
Ensuring that the College’s students have access to much needed aid is an ongoing effort. The recent increase in federal and state regulation targeted at higher education has greatly affected this access for many CNR students. To offset this, financial aid packaging of the School of New Resources’ Dean’s Grant and Merit Scholarship has been implemented. Both were favorably received and resulted in more than $1.0 million in financial aid to SNR students.

In addition, the School of New Resources was awarded a $250,000 annually renewable grant from the College Access Challenge Grant from New York State’s Higher Education Services Corporation to provide scholarships to qualified adult learners seeking access to postsecondary education despite lacking a high school diploma or GED certificate. Congress has recently tightened the eligibility criteria for federal financial aid in the form of Pell grants, so that those lacking the high school diploma or the GED no longer qualify for assistance.

Scholarships are also being offered to select students in the accelerated second-degree nursing program thanks to the generosity of Aline Sgueglia Martinelli SAS’52 and Al Martinelli.
ACHIEVING REACCREDITATION AND EXPANDING ACADEMIC OFFERINGS

The College successfully concluded its Middle States Accreditation review for the ten-year period from 2001-2011. For more than two years, members of the College Community collaborated on the preparation of a document that demonstrated how the College has addressed the Characteristics of Excellence in Higher Education as outlined by the Middle States Commission. The Middle States team determined that the College has met all 14 Standards of Accreditation.

Many new academic initiatives are underway, including the introduction of several new programs. The Graduate School introduced new master’s degrees in Public Administration and in Marriage and Family Therapy and an advanced certificate in Interventions for Autism Spectrum Disorders. A certificate in Forensic Science is also being implemented in the School of Arts & Sciences.

We have expanded course offerings with the School of Nursing now offering the RN to BSN program for District Council 37 members at their union offices in Manhattan. The Graduate School also began offering programs in guidance and counseling at the Brooklyn and DC-37 campuses this fall.

Our students are also supported in expanding their global horizons through the Russel and Deborah Taylor Foundation Scholarship, which generously funds half the cost of study abroad for eligible students.

UPGRADING FACILITIES

Through the generous gift from Anne Marie Nichol Hynes SAS’71, a math major at CNR, the College created a state-of-the-art Mathematics Center for undergraduates. Located in renovated space in the Rogick Science Building the classroom consists of 14 Mac books, an iMac for instructor workstation, and a SMART Board. There are also wireless capability and specialized software, such as statistical analysis (SPSS) and Matlab.

Gill Library is evaluating CNR’s print collection to make room for more student-focused areas, including exploring the creation of a Library & Learning Commons, and they are adding relevant new electronic databases as well as establishing a collection of over 70,000 electronic books available to students, faculty and staff.

The School of Nursing received an additional grant from Donna Matthews Walcott SAS’52 and Jack Walcott to further enhance the simulation lab in the Learning Resource Center for Nursing. The Walcotts’ previous gift in 2010 resulted in a significant upgrade to the Learning Center.

EXPANDING TECHNOLOGY

The College’s technology needs are also being evaluated. Academic Computing and Information Systems underwent a restructuring to provide greater support for e-learning opportunities in all four Schools. There is now a separate e-Learning and Instructional Technologies department consisting of four staff members, two of whom were hired this year. This department provides support for integrating technology into the curriculum as well for hybrid and online learning.

A team from IBM, suggested by alumna Ellen Mooney Hancock SAS’65 and her husband Jason Hancock, created an Information Technology Roadmap for The College of New Rochelle. The goal of the project was to create a blueprint aligned with CNR’s strategic priorities that will enable us to achieve our future objectives and more effectively manage our technology organization and resources. The roadmap highlights certain areas: technology proficiency for students, e-learning, data accessibility and integration, operational efficiency, including redesigned website, and information technology governance.
CLOSING THE INAUGURAL YEAR

CNR President Huntington’s Inaugural Year Closes with Celebration of Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly, OSU

BY LENORE BOYTIM CARPINELLI SAS’89

Ursuline, teacher, historian, leader, proponent of women’s education, advocate for access to education, influencer of educational public policy, promoter of interfaith understanding, peacemaker—Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly, OSU was all of these and more. She had a profound impact on so many and so much during her lifetime, most of all on her beloved College of New Rochelle. During an association with the College that spanned more than six decades, she served in many roles, most notably as president for 25 years. Under her leadership, the College grew from one school to four Schools, with seven campuses and a student body of more than 6,500.

She opened the doors of education to thousands of inner-city adults who would not otherwise have access to higher education with the founding of the School of New Resources, a unique model that made her a visionary in adult education. And she was deeply committed to the role of women as equals in society which led to her involvement beyond the College both nationally as the first woman chair of the National Association for Independent Colleges and Universities and internationally as the only women’s college president to serve as a member of the official United States delegation to the UN World Conference on Women in Beijing.

Therefore, it was particularly fitting that the College marked the closing of the inaugural year of President Judith Huntington by honoring Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly. It came very naturally,” says CNR President Huntington. “In deciding to close the inaugural year, I wanted to capture the core values of The College of New Rochelle, who we’ve been for 109 years, who we are now, and who we are committed to be in the future—our Catholic identity, our commitment to Ursuline tradition and charisms, to women’s education, to the liberal arts education, and to access and diversity—and it immediately came to mind to celebrate the legacy of Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly. It came very naturally.”

“This is the appropriate time to remember that we remain the beneficiaries of all that she did for The College of New Rochelle, and to celebrate her.”

—JUDITH HUNTINGTON, CNR PRESIDENT

2012 ANNUAL REPORT / THE COLLEGE OF NEW ROCHELLE
A GALA CELEBRATION

The October 2012 celebration began with a Gala at Glen Island Harbour Club, attended by hundreds of alumnae and friends of the College.

A touching video tribute truly captured the essence of Sr. Dorothy Ann from those who knew her well and set the tone for the evening.

“She was a woman of great faith and she didn’t talk about it so much as act on it,” said Father Leo O’Donovan, SJ, CNR Trustee and President Emeritus of Georgetown University.

“Wherever there was an activity, a cause that was serious, that involved people, Sr. Dorothy Ann was involved,” said United States Congresswoman Nita Lowey.

“She was the first role model and first female CEO I ever knew with an uncanny ability to motivate people to action. She demanded excellence and she got things done,” said Anne Sweeney SAS’79, President and CEO of Disney-ABC Cable Networks.

“To see the world through the eyes of women, that’s who Dorothy Ann Kelly was, that’s what she was committed to in higher education, in public policy formation, in her relationships. That was in her soul,” said Dr. Stephen Sweeney, President Emeritus of CNR.

“She was a woman of great faith and she didn’t talk about it so much as act on it.”

—FATHER Leo O’DONOVAN, SJ, CNR TRUSTEE
Mistress of ceremonies and CNR alumna Shiba Russell, now 5 PM and 11 PM Anchor of WNBC-TV News 4 New York, followed the video with some of her own remembrances of Sr. Dorothy Ann from her time as a student at the College.

During the Gala the College also honored five CNR alumnae whose lives and careers exemplify the lasting values and ideals of Sr. Dorothy Ann—Rosa Kittrell Barksdale, Chief Executive Officer of Barksdale Home Care Services; Dee DelBello, Chief Executive Officer of Westfair Communications Inc.; Celeste M. Johnson, Associate Commissioner/Regional Director of the Metropolitan Area Regional Office of the New York State Department of Health; Dolores Castellano King, former Chief Executive Officer of the William J. Hirten Company, Inc.; and Valerie Salembier, President & CEO of The Salembier Group.

“These women have distinguished themselves in business, public and community service, healthcare, and the media,” said President Huntington. “They continue to express in their lives the talents and abilities that were developed and encouraged while they were students at CNR. They are businesswomen, community leaders, mothers and grandmothers, mentors, and friends. They are women of conscience and compassion.”

THE CELEBRATION CONTINUES
The following day the celebration continued with a mass and academic convocation on campus.

“We should stand in awe and gratitude to Sr. Dorothy Ann, for she carried this college on her back…, said Brother Jack Rathschmidt, OFM Cap., former CNR Chaplain, before a packed Holy Family Chapel.

Later at the convocation in The Wellness Center, the tributes came from Archbishop Theodore Cardinal McCarrick of Washington, DC; Lillian Roberts, Executive Director of District Council 37; Sr. Regina Kehoe, OSU SAS’56; and CNR President Emeritus Stephen Sweeny (who though unable to be there sent a tribute read by President Huntington).

“The many women today who have broken through the glass curtain, or the glass ceiling, and have rightly obtained executive leadership in our society, in our businesses, in government, and in education owe very much to Sr. Dorothy Ann’s vision and her persistence,” said Cardinal McCarrick.

During the event, the College also honored three individuals who represent all that Sr. Dorothy Ann stood for as president, spiritual leader, and advocate. Cardinal McCarrick and Elza Dinwiddie-Boyd, former Dean of the College’s School of New Resources, received honorary degrees. Mother Cecelia Wang, OSU, Prioress General of the Ursulines, was given the Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly Woman of Conscience Award, an award established when she stepped down as president in 1997.

A LASTING TRIBUTE

Throughout the two days of tributes to a truly remarkable woman, those in attendance were inspired by Sr. Dorothy Ann’s many accomplishments and by her legacy that continues to be felt at the College, in the higher education community, the Ursuline community, and beyond.

Eager to create a lasting tribute to Sr. Dorothy Ann, President Huntington also announced at the gala that a committee would be formed to determine the best way to permanently memorialize Sr. Dorothy Ann Kelly at the College for generations to come. Those discussions are now underway.
Luisa Garcia’s childhood nickname was Cucharita—literally a little spoon or scoop, someone who is always trying to pick up on things and get the inside story.

“My mother called me that because I wanted to get in on every adult conversation, find out what was going on in the world. So my parents always knew I was going to go into journalism. Every child is curious, but I was curious in other ways.”

The Queens resident has worked hard to satisfy that curious urge, from the day she walked into her local newspaper and begged for a chance.

“The Queens Courier’s interns were mainly college-age, from St. Johns. I was just in high school and they told me, “What are you doing here, you’re too young.” But Luisa persisted, offered to work for free and finally got the job.

“My first article came back with so many corrections,” she recalls with a cringe. “But a great editor there took me under her wing, and by the tenth story I had it. It really helps to start somewhere small.”

And that’s how she felt at CNR, right from the start.

“I looked at some bigger colleges but I felt like just a number,” says the communications/political science major. “Then I visited here and immediately felt the difference. The professors are so dedicated, and everyone is focused on what YOU want to achieve.”

CNR also has “a totally amazing TV studio, and I’ve been producing, writing, editing, and reporting for newscasts there. I want to be a reporter and then an anchor someday, but in journalism today you have to know how to do everything. And I’ve gotten hands-on experience here from Day 1.”

Luisa’s latest big experience is a semester in London, where she is interning at the NBC Bureau of The Today Show. It’s just the latest in a series of memorable internships that have included:

- ABC’s 20/20 magazine show, helping produce Diane Sawyer’s report about the dangers of childbirth in Third-World countries, “places where a woman might have to walk for days just to get to a hospital.”
- WCBS-TV News, learning public relations and doing feature segments with medical expert Max Gomez. “I didn’t know much about medicine but I wanted to do something outside my comfort zone.”
- And the popular hidden-camera TV series What Would You Do?, starring reporter John Quinones. “He’s such an inspiration to the Latino community,” says Luisa, a Colombia native brought to America at age 7 by her mom.

While in London (with the help of a Russel and Deborah Taylor Foundation Scholarship for study abroad), Luisa is taking an in-depth course at Richmond University, a CNR foreign-study affiliate, on the tragic history and politics of the Middle East. It’s all part of her plan to pair a Communications degree with Poli Sci.

“I feel you can’t report about things you don’t know, and there is so much to know about politics and government. Plus I think employers want to see you are interested in serious work, not just what the Kardashians are up to.”

Luisa has been serious about the news since her first Take Your Daughter to Work Day—her stepdad is a
In four years with the U.S. Marine Corps, Donald Day never saw active combat. But today he is right on the front lines alongside his fellow former soldiers, as they battle red tape and the many other challenges of rejoining civilian life.

A Vice Commander in his local chapter of Disabled American Veterans, the Brooklyn resident helps wounded servicemen and women put through the sometimes daunting paperwork for their federal benefit pay. But he also is ready when needed with empathy and emotional support.

“Remember, these are young people—that’s who gets sent to war. They come to DAV to get compensated for their injuries, yet we see all kinds of other problems as well.”

And the biggest problem for returning vets right now, Donald says, is post-traumatic stress disorder. “They keep sending soldiers back and forth, back and forth, on multiple deployments overseas. You’re suddenly going from a combat zone back to home, where everything is supposed to be hunky-dory, so it’s tough on the entire family.”

And Donald recently filled in that piece by completing his courses at the College’s Brooklyn Campus. “Some people would never think I needed this,” he adds with smile, “but earning my degree was also a real boost for my self-confidence.”

That confidence comes across as Donald counsels wounded vets at DAV, in the Veteran’s Administration hospital at Brooklyn’s Fort Hamilton. (Continued on page 14)
“Some will be melancholy, some will be aggressive. If a guy is yelling, I have no problem yelling back. More women are coming too, and they’ve often been mistreated. I just deal with people as they come. I’ve had to put my arm around someone and walk them down to the emergency room.”

When vets get in trouble with the law, Donald is there as well—as a volunteer mentor in the Brooklyn Supreme Court’s VA Treatment Program. It’s a chance, he explains, to get straight and clear your record of drug- or alcohol-related arrests and other violations. “I’ve suggested we deal with domestic violence as well.

“Fortunately, I come from a very arts-oriented family,” including one uncle who is a professional stagehand and two other relatives who are musicians. “So I never heard, ‘No, you can’t do that kind of thing.’”

That showbiz background made Amelia a natural choice for 2012-13 president of CNR’s dramatic society. With A Midsummer Night’s Dream on the bill this spring, she’s busy making sure that casting, rehearsals, and a host of backstage details all come together smoothly.

“But one of my most important roles is simply helping everyone overcome their insecurities. You learn it’s not about what you might do wrong. The important thing is to get out there and do it.”

The New England native has thrived in the spotlight, right from the day she played a Pilgrim in her first-grade Thanksgiving pageant. “That was in Plymouth, MA, where the real Pilgrims first landed, so it’s a pretty major deal there.”

Nevertheless, she still does face some occasional pre-curtain jitters. “So one important rule is no caffeine on performance days!”

Another time-honored backstage rule is that the show must go on—and Amelia says CNR has encouraged her to persevere as a person as well as a performer.

“To say that college has been easy would be a lie. I had some health problems, big medical bills, even took a semester off to figure out what I wanted to do.

“But through it all CNR has always been there for me. I had great advisors who pretty much saved my education, and professors who said, ‘We can challenge you, you’re important to us and to the school.’

“So I realized I couldn’t quit. That just isn’t me.”

And “role model” could be Donald’s middle name. Earning a coveted set of dress blues as a top recruit at boot camp, his performance on overseas maneuvers earned more honors and his no-nonsense bearing led to assignment as a military court bailiff back in the States. “I was the guy who says, ‘All rise!’ and takes discipline problems to the brig.”

Donald also provides a model of smooth re-entry to civilian life—successfully running a window replacement company, then putting his military training to work with 14 years at the New York City DOT’s communications center as well as piloting a subway train.

But today, with one youngster heading to college and two already grown, Donald and attorney wife Jameione look forward to spending more time on some upstate farmland that has been in his family since 1795.

“I’m planning to start a vineyard, and someday, I hope, I can present a case of my wine to the CNR president.”
As she writes in a song called Let Go of Time,
Make life worth the living
As hard as it may come

It’s just one of many songs Amelia has penned, “ballads, blues, that kind of feel.” She currently plays guitar in a jazz/blues duo with CNR friend and violinist Regina Alvarado, and also plays flute with CNR’s Chapel Choir.

Amelia went to high school in Great Barrington, MA, a cultural hotbed just down the road from the Tanglewood music festival. “CNR is close to New York City, so I can enjoy the arts and find opportunities to perform. I love the campus.”

English was hardly one of Amelia’s favorite subjects in high school, “but there is so much passion in the English Department here, so much emphasis on critical analysis, digging deep to the core of the text. And my French professor, Dr. Andre Beauzethier, is also genuinely outstanding.”

Tapping her artistic and linguistic talents, Amelia, a member of the College’s Honors Program, is coordinating editor at Phoenix, CNR’s literary and arts magazine—where she recently helped launch an e-supplement to showcase arts news and reviews.

And last fall she was named to lead CNR Drama, after several years’ work on scenic design and sound engineering as well as on-stage roles with the group. Amelia especially enjoys the teamwork the program fosters, with every member of cast and crew contributing to the final product.

“Doing a show is like getting on a boat together. If it starts capsizing, it’s everybody’s role to right the ship.”

Alka Kurian will graduate CNR’s School of Nursing this spring with plenty of firsthand hospital experience—plus a professional perspective that also looks beyond a hospital’s four walls.

“I hope to go into leadership management, especially in public health—the type of nursing that addresses conditions out in the community. I’d like to work somewhere like the federal Centers for Disease Control or the National Institutes of Health.

“And coming from India, I want to learn more about global nursing, gain an awareness of the health issues other nations are facing.”

Infectious-disease control, Alka explains, “is one interest of mine and just one of many challenges on which nurses can collaborate with governments and international groups to be of service in underdeveloped countries.”

Alka was in sixth grade when her family moved to the U.S. “The language barrier was a challenge at first because I had been very outgoing in India. But in six or eight months I picked up enough English and began to feel like myself again.”

She also met her first U.S. friend—Shiyon Mathew, another New Rochelle sixth-grader originally from India. Following middle school and high school (Continued on page 16)
A "t CNR we learn to focus on the entire patient, not just the physical care," says nursing student Shiyon Mathew.

"And the experiences that stand out most in my mind are the times when I can be there for that patient, to talk things through or hold their hand, not just deliver their medicine."

Shiyon recalls one woman in particular from a clinical rotation at Montefiore Hospital in the Bronx, a cancer patient in chronic pain and frustration. "She was very angry and demanding, but I realized she just needed some personal attention. I remained calm and spent some extra time talking with her, and to my surprise she opened up about her feelings. Simply being available for her was important, and it was a touching
A good point guard plays like an extra coach on the basketball court, providing the team with structure and framework. And sophomore guard Alyssa Pechin says CNR’s basketball program does the same for her in return.

With a 26-game schedule and two-hour practices—six days a week at 5 AM sharp—“I have to sit down each Sunday and budget my time. Classes, homework, right down to when I can eat. If I didn’t have that discipline, sometimes things might not get done.”

But the business management major has left no doubt she can get things done, with a brilliant freshman season that saw her become the first CNR Blue Angel ever named rookie of the year in the Association of Division III Independents (AD3I), as well as a first-team conference all-star. She also earned all-conference status in the Hudson Valley Women’s Athletic Conference (HVWAC).

And all that at just 5 feet flat, though Alyssa doesn’t see her small stature as a drawback.

“I’m so tiny that opponents don’t pay much attention to me at first.”

Neither did some college coaches—but when choosing CNR for its athletics as well as academics, the Yonkers, NY native found a place where heart matters more than height. “A lot of schools wanted someone taller and said I could be a backup. But I wanted someplace I could play right away.”

CNR offered that chance, and Alyssa also noticed that the College’s new Wellness Center offered “the nicest gym of all the schools I saw. I looked at all those bleachers and thought, ‘I want to see them filled when I play.’”

Watching their daughter play back in third grade, Alyssa’s parents quickly saw they had a budding talent on their hands. Up went a backyard hoop, and off went Alyssa to join a local league in the highly competitive Amateur Athletic Union (AAU). Her longtime AAU coach, Lou Kern, was the head coach for the Blue Angels when they made their memorable run to the 1985 NCAA Division III National Championship Game—just a moment for me when she thanked me for listening.”

Like her close CNR friend Alka Kurian, Shiyon was born in India and her mother is a nurse. “Several family members are in the profession. It’s a popular choice for women in my culture, so I grew up around nursing.

“But then,” the New Rochelle resident adds, “I realized that I actually knew very little about a nurse’s role. A lot of friends gave good reviews to CNR and its nursing program, so it seemed like a natural choice to come here and find out.”

And thanks to her CNR experiences, Shiyon now enjoys a much clearer picture of a nurse’s day. On observational shifts at area hospitals, “I shadowed nurses in settings such as the ER and the dialysis unit, to learn how they prioritize care, manage time, and collaborate with fellow team members in a fast-paced environment.”

But Shiyon also treasured a unique opportunity in a far more pastoral setting, the beautiful Catskills—working last summer at a YMCA camp for children, including many with physical and mental disabilities.

“I interned as a nurse’s aide in the camp’s Wellness Center. Nurses were the primary staff, so I got to see them working independently and using their judgment. I would help make sure patients needs’ were being met, and also talk with the parents, who of course are very much on edge when a child is ill.”

Those parental concerns provide a reminder that the human touch is crucial in medicine.

“Technology helps us do things more efficiently, but the person must remain the focus,” Shiyon makes clear,
After 30 successful years in banking, Nancy Burroughs gave it all up—for lower pay but much higher interest. “It was helping children and people that I wanted to do, not banking, and in 2000 I just decided to do it.”

Starting over at age 50, Nancy landed a job as a teacher’s aide in Mount Vernon, while also finding a network of ministries that counsel domestic-abuse victims, former prison inmates and others in need. The North Carolina native knows how it feels to need help, recalling her teenage years in a cramped Harlem apartment—11 relatives sharing just two rooms and a tiny kitchen. “So from Day 1 I’ve dreamed of helping others. It’s a gift I was born with, just something in me.”

After high school, Nancy hoped to continue her education and become a social worker. “But we needed the money, so I took the first job that came along,” a back-office post at Chemical Bank that led to branch management at Chase. But while college was out of reach when Nancy was young, her second career gave her a surprising second chance.

“When No Child Left Behind became law in 2004, Mount Vernon required its teacher’s aides to get some college credits. I saw a sign for CNR’s School of New Resources at Co-op City in the Bronx, and found that a lot of adults were going there. So I started out, and soon realized, ‘I can do this!’ ”

“I call it awesome—the positive effect the School of New Resources has on adult students, their families, and communities.”

By 2008 Nancy had earned a degree in psychology, followed by a master’s in guidance and counseling. “It was so beautiful. I love the people there, the school spirit. CNR opened up my intellect, showing me my dream and helping me reach it.”

And today she does the same for special-education students, at William Holmes Elementary School. With 13 years’ classroom experience, Nancy’s feedback has become vital to the teachers she assists.

“They can’t do everything in the course of a day. Working with students individually or in small groups, an aide can discover what learning tools might reach them best—academically, socially, and vocationally.”

With special-needs children, behavior management can be another crucial role. “There are many things that need to be addressed, and if you don’t do it now you’re going to have problems later on.”

What kind of problems? “You name it,” says the Mount Vernon resident. “Broken homes, self-esteem, peer pressures, grief, these can be issues even in elementary school. But there are little things you can do if you listen for what’s happening in children’s lives.”

After six years as a middle-school aide and four with high-schoolers before joining Holmes, Nancy has learned to size up youngsters at every stage.

“One thing we do is assist the family in problem-solving, try to bring parents and children together,” says the mother of two grown children and a licensed foster parent. “A lot of problems go back to how people were raised.

“I would like to do more counseling,” she adds, “but there are very few counseling jobs in the system. So I try to do what I can, unofficially. I was given this talent, and feel I need to use it.”

Use it she does, not just at school but through her Nancy Burroughs Ministry, a non-profit network including male and female support groups as well as outreach for teen mothers, former inmates, and others seeking guidance.

An ordained non-denominational minister, Nancy runs a Bronx church, plus a divinity school and GED courses in Queens. And her powerful “Keeping it Real” seminars tackle issues such as anger, grief, domestic violence, and sexual abuse. “It spreads by word of mouth. Other ministers know me. Anytime there’s a need I get a phone call.”

And while her classroom salary may seem skimpy compared to her previous banking pay, Nancy’s personal faith pays a steady dividend.

“I have always believed God would pull me through. And I have no regrets, because education is priceless. I’m blessed to have been led to CNR, for the opportunity to make a difference in the world.”

saying there can be a temptation to study patients’ data on the computer screen while failing to truly see the patients themselves.

Living in Oman for five years before coming to New Rochelle as a fifth-grader, Shiyon found that along with American foods she also had to adjust to our individualistic culture. “Back in India there’s more sense of family and community.”

But CNR, she found, does offer that family feeling.
“I quickly felt a sense of intimacy within the College Community, and found there were so many student groups and activities to take part in.” And she credits those activities with sharpening her leadership skills—know-how that will come in handy for the administrative career she envisions down the road.

As VP of our Student Nurses Association chapter, Shiyon teamed with Alka on the group's coat drive for the local homeless. Aware that communication skills are vital in health care, Shiyon also has worked on the SNA newsletter, the school newspaper, and the creative-writing magazine.

And as a member of the WILDE environmental club, Shiyon helped lead a unique project in which students shredded grocery bags into a plastic yarn called “plarn,” which was then crocheted into attractive handbags. Not only was potential litter removed from the environment, but proceeds from the handbag sales were donated to the New York Aquarium at Coney Island.

“I’ve always had an interest in environmental issues, and WILDE has given me a newfound awareness of the deep relationship between mankind and the world at large. We try to share this awareness with others and emphasize the need to take responsibility for our actions.”

one more reason Alyssa chose CNR after a standout prep career at Our Lady of Victory Academy in Dobbs Ferry, NY.

Led by first-year head coach Kashif Hameed,
Alyssa says the Blue Angels have plenty of talent,
“and we're trying right now to put it all together.”
She's had to put her own game back together after missing nearly a month early in the season with a bruised kidney and cracked vertebra—suffered after crashing to the court in a hustling bid to block an opponent’s lay-up.

Alyssa says CNR’s athletic programs nurture a supportive family-type atmosphere.
“You're with your teammates all the time, you eat all your meals together, and it builds special friendships. I didn’t know anyone here when I first came to school, but once basketball season started
I felt right at home.”

Taking an accounting course just to fill some credits back in high school, Alyssa found herself right at home with that profession. Today she hopes to earn her MBA and join an accounting firm after graduation.

“Accounting just makes so much sense.”
So does working with young people, and even during her busy basketball season Alyssa finds the time to referee children’s games. “I think they relate to me so well because I’m tiny, like them.” She also volunteers as a coach with the AAU and local youth leagues, a role she’d like to continue when her college playing days are done.

But when that day comes, local fans could have still more Pechin in store.

“I’ve been coaching my sister AriAna since she was in third grade. She's in sixth grade now,” Alyssa warns, “and she’s going to be better than me.”

DEAR GRADUATES AND FRIENDS,

Our CNR family is a remarkable community of more than 50,000 graduates, parents and friends. It is a family with enduring ties, sharing a commitment to the liberal arts, to service, and to the College’s educational mission. On behalf of the Board of Trustees, thank you very much for your active participation in the life of The College of New Rochelle in 2011-2012.

We are grateful for your gifts of all kinds: your time as a volunteer, your confidence in recommending CNR to a prospective student or donor, your attendance at CNR programs, and your hospitality in sharing your home or business for a College event.

We are also deeply grateful for your financial support. It was one of the College’s best fund-raising years ever, thanks to some significant gifts added to the valuable consistent support we receive at all levels from thousands of graduates and friends like you.

Your gifts provide vital resources for every student as they strive to complete their degree requirements and become leaders and role models within their families and communities, and among their colleagues and friends. Contributions provide scholarships, access to online educational resources, technology to enhance their learning experiences, guest lectures by distinguished visiting professors, and travel expenses to honors conferences and symposia.

Donations to CNR in 2012 totaled $7.3 million from 3,503 donors—graduates of all four Schools, current and former faculty and staff, friends, foundations, and corporations.

- Annual Fund gifts from individuals exceeded $4.1 million
- CNR received more than $1.1 million from bequests made by alumnae who included the College in their estate plans
- Leadership gifts from 212 President’s Circle members provided $5.2 million (71%) of the $7.3 million raised, including one anonymous donor providing $1 million to strengthen CNR’s educational programs
- The College received an extraordinary gift of Ansel Adams photography from a former CNR faculty member valued at more than $2.5 million

The pages that follow list the CNR family of donors who made 2012 a significant year for CNR and all of its students. I hope you will continue to partner with us to educate students and fulfill CNR’s mission. Thank you, again for your outstanding support of The College of New Rochelle.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Bell LeVaca

PARTNERS FOR EXCELLENCE
GIFT SOCIETIES

Partners for Excellence is a College-wide effort to engage students, faculty, staff, graduates, and friends in a meaningful and mutually beneficial relationship to provide for the current and future health of the College. Financial support is one critical cornerstone of a strong and vibrant learning community.

We thank all our partners for excellence who so generously and consistently support the College, its mission, and most importantly its students.

Donor recognition societies were created to express our deep appreciation to our most generous donors and our most loyal donors via special listings and membership in the St. Angela Society, Mother Irene Gill Society, and the Fidelis Society.

ST. ANGELA SOCIETY
($1 MILLION+ LIFETIME GIVING)

St. Angela Merici founded the Ursuline Order. CNR was originally named The College of St. Angela by its Ursuline foundresses. Over the past century, St. Angela’s history and legacy have been kept alive through the vitality of the College’s mission, and on campus in the naming of Angela Residence Hall, the celebration of the Feast of St. Angela annually in January, and the bronze statue of St. Angela Merici on the New Rochelle campus.

With profound gratitude, we recognize these donors whose cumulative lifetime giving to all funds has provided foundational and transformational support for the growth and development of The College of New Rochelle.

MOTHER IRENE GILL SOCIETY
($500,000 – $999,999)

Mother Irene Gill (1860-1935), recognized for her leadership skills and commitment to the education of women, was a religious leader, academic administrator, and founder of The College of Saint Angela (changed in 1910 to The College of New Rochelle). Under her leadership, the College became the fifth Catholic women’s college in the country, the first in New York State and is now the largest Catholic college for women in the nation.

The College is extraordinarily grateful to the following donors whose cumulative lifetime giving to all funds has generously supported the College for so many years, providing critical funding for CNR’s growth and expansion.

THANK YOU!!
The College of New Rochelle thanks its many donors listed in this report who have contributions between July 1, 2011 and June 30, 2012. If we have inadvertently misspelled your name or if your name has been omitted, please accept our apologies and call Jennifer Mahoney, Director of Annual Giving, at 800-474-4232 or email at jmahoney@cnr.edu, so the correction can be made to our records.
THE PRESIDENT’S CIRCLE

ANNUAL FUND LEADERSHIP GIFT SOCIETY

Membership in The President’s Circle—CNR’s most prestigious Annual Fund donor recognition society—is granted to donors whose gifts to the Annual Fund total $1,500 or more each year (July 1 to June 30). Matching gifts are included in the donor’s gift total.

Leadership gifts are critical to the financial health of the College and can be used where the need is greatest or where the donor requests their contribution to be used. These contributions provide for an academically rich educational experience.

In 2012, 212 members of The President’s Circle gave more than $5,206,000 to the Annual Fund. This includes the $2.5 million gift of a complete museum set of 75 Ansel Adams photographs, a million dollar gift from an anonymous donor and a million dollar bequest. With great appreciation, we thank these graduates and friends and welcome them into one of the following President’s Circle donor recognition societies.

We are extremely grateful to the following donors for the leadership gifts they made in 2011. These donors were not included in the 2011 Annual Report President’s Circle listing. We apologize for this oversight and thank them by recognizing their extraordinary generosity at this time.

PARTNERS FOR EXCELLENCE GIFT SOCIETIES

ANNUAL FUND GIFT SOCIETIES

Gifts to the Annual Fund are used to meet the College’s greatest current needs—items not covered by tuition, but necessary to a CNR education. Giving to the Annual Fund is one direct way to be a ‘partner for excellence’ and help the College and its students.

Your partnership at any level of giving will make a difference, ensure CNR’s future, maintain its tradition of excellence in education and create opportunities. We are particularly grateful to the following members of our Annual Fund donor recognition societies.

† Fidelity Society / 20 yr.
In addition to gifts to the Annual Fund, the generosity of our alumnae/i, and friends is expressed through other gifts to the College: restricted gifts for special purposes or programs; gifts in-kind, endowed gifts, estate gifts and capital gifts.

We also receive funding from state and federal government programs along with corporations and foundations in support of CNR initiatives and ongoing programs. Corporate matching gifts provide an additional significant source of revenue. We are ever grateful to our donors who take advantage of them to benefit the College.

2012 Annual Report / The College of New Rochelle
The College of New Rochelle was founded in 1904 by the Ursuline Order as the first Catholic college for women in New York State. Today, the College serves a student population of nearly 4,200 students. In addition to the School of Arts and Sciences, which remains all-women, the College has three co-educational schools: the Graduate School, established in 1969; the School of New Resources, in 1972; and the School of Nursing, in 1976. The College’s main campus is in New Rochelle, with six branch campuses of the School of New Resources located throughout the New York metropolitan area.

Contributions from Trustees, graduates and friends have always supported CNR’s mission. The importance of the life of the spirit and a reverence for the individual are hallmarks of an Ursuline value-based education. These characteristics are manifest in a College of New Rochelle education today. The College’s primary purpose is the intellectual development of persons through the maintenance of the highest standards of academic excellence and educational growth. From this tradition, the College derives its dedication to the education of women and men in the liberal arts and in professional studies. The College reaches out to those who have not previously had access to higher education and places particular emphasis on the concept of lifelong learning.

Charitable donations allow the College to build upon its commitment and mission as an educational institution by providing academic scholarships, grants, financial aid, and technology enhancements. Similarly, revenue from contributions is used for physical plant renovations, special programs, and curriculum development.

Gifts to the College include cash, appreciated securities, capital donations, real estate, charitable gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, endowed funds, and bequests.

When The College of New Rochelle is included in estate plans through a planned gift or a bequest, thoughtful donors reduce their taxes, protect their assets, and in some cases generate income. By reaching beyond their own lives to assure opportunities for future generations, CNR’s donors shape the future and make a critical difference in the College’s ability to fulfill its mission.

This year, we received a “Million Dollar Challenge” match from a generous CNR graduate and benefactor (who wishes to remain anonymous). All new and increased gifts received through July 12, 2013 will be matched up to one million dollars as a result of this Challenge, which was created to strengthen all aspects of the CNR experience, as well as to express confidence in the future of the College under the leadership of President Judith Huntington.

This is a wonderful opportunity to double the value of your gift and reinforce CNR’s mission, vision and initiatives. We hope you will say “Yes!” to the Million Dollar Challenge by returning your gift/additional gift in the enclosed reply envelope, or donating online at www.myncn.com/makeagift.

The gifts reported in this Annual Report reflect the year ending June 30, 2012. As you think about the tremendous value of your gift in 2013 and how much it will benefit CNR students and faculty, please seriously consider making your gift today. And, if you have already given, please consider an additional gift. Thank you.
